

Industrywatch

Jan 2012

AtHomeNet and Community Advocacy Network Partner to Benefit Florida Community Associations

The AtHomeNet and Community Advocacy Network partnership provides Florida residents opportunity for greater interaction with government decision-makers and news media outlets.

AtHomeNet, Inc. (AHN), a Web services company in suburban Atlanta, has joined forces with the Community Advocacy Network (CAN), Florida's leading advocacy organization for community association residents statewide, to offer Florida residents with AtHomeNet websites a portal to connect with legislators, members of the media, and community association advocates.

"Through our partnership with CAN, our clients will have a direct link to all the advocacy information and tools that the network has to offer with a special password created specifically for each community," says AtHomeNet CEO, Susan Sanders. "The portal will be automatically added to every Florida-based community association with an AtHomeNet website, giving more than 1,600 community associations the ultimate resource for legislative and operational information geared to their association needs."

These residents will have immediate access to educational information and events about a variety of issues affecting Florida community associations, as well as an e-mail tool allowing them to voice their opinions about legislative bills as well as local government proposals. AHN customers will be able to subscribe to CAN Alerts containing breaking news, concise bill summaries, and a Legislative Bill Tracker.

"The Community Advocacy Network is proud to team with AtHomeNet to provide Florida's growing community association population with immediate online access via their AtHomeNet community websites to state legislators, public officials, and news organizations via the CAN Portal and our 'Capitol Connection' e-mail system," says CAN Executive Director Donna DiMaggio Berger. "We believe this partnership with AtHomeNet will go a long way toward informing and empowering Florida community association residents so that, through their greater participation in the democratic process, they can make a truly positive impact on the future of the communities in which they live."

About AtHomeNet, Inc.

AtHomeNet is the nation's premier provider of customized, affordable websites for communities and Professional Association Management Firms. The company was founded in 1998 by Jeff and Susan Sanders. For more information on AtHomeNet Web services, please visit www.AtHomeNet.com or contact Heather McGowen at HeatherM@AtHomeNet.com or call (800) 556-7852.

About the Community Advocacy Network (CAN)

The Community Advocacy Network is Florida's leading voice for the interests of community associations statewide. A not-for-profit, non-partisan organization operating under the guidance of a statewide volunteer Advisory Council, CAN provides education, advocacy, and outreach services to Florida communities year-round. For more about CAN activities and membership, visit www.CANFL.com.